Calgary school to bear names of corporations

Concern. Trustee hopes for greater debate on the role of the corporate world in classrooms

Corporate naming of school facilities is set to debut as the Calgary Board of Education seeks new revenue streams, a superintendent says.

Cathy Faber, who heads the public board's learning innovation department, told Metro at least two sponsors will be unveiled at the official May 7 reopening of Lord Shaughnessy High School, now focused on career and technology studies.

Faber refrained from disclosing the sponsors; however, she said their agreements with the board came as a direct result of a contentious regulation change last year that allowed areas of a school — but not the entire building — to be named after a corporation.

The regulation states: "No person other than the Board of Trustees will make a commitment to a donor or contributor to name a physical space or educational program."

But Trustee Sheila Taylor, who had expressed concerns about certain corporations figuring prominently in city schools — even publishing a blog post with a cheeky headline reading, "This Slope Made Slippery by Pennzoil" — said Sunday it was the first she'd heard about Shaughnessy's sponsors.

"I'm happy this issue has come up, because it is important to the public and we need to have a public discussion about it," Taylor said.

When asked about the approval requirements, Faber said, "(Trustees) don't have to approve each one per se, but each one has to be compliant — and there's a level of scrutiny there, when I stand up and talk about them or when we say we're in compliance, that we have all of that mapped out and all of that information available as requested."

Faber said $500,000 in cash donations, $1 million in equipment and additional expertise had been contributed by the sponsors, but she did not elaborate on where their names would be featured beyond a "sponsorship wall" in the school. She said more than two sponsors could be revealed May 7, but arrangements are still being worked out. JEREMY NOLAIS/METRO

Traffic safety

Alberta considers revising hours of playground zones

Senior provincial ministers will sit down with Calgary school-board representatives, aldermen, police and parents this week to go over possible measures to improve traffic safety for Alberta's littlest learners.

In 2010, city officials introduced earlier school-zone times, forcing drivers to slow to 30 km/h from 7:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. However, parent advocates have continued to push the province to follow suit with playground-zone times, which currently run from 8:30 a.m. to one hour after sunset, as many school areas feature a mix of both.

Alberta Transportation Minister Ric McIver will attend Thursday's meeting at Ecole Sam Livingston School along with solicitor general Jonathan Denis and a representative from the provincial education ministry.

"We are looking at it and we'll see what happens," McIver said on Sunday. "This is one of those issues where nobody's wrong because everybody's looking for what's safest for their children."

Jillian Drysdale and the traffic safety committee at Sam Livingston have steered efforts to align the zone times and are putting on Thursday's meeting. She said, however, its primary goal is to raise awareness about the topic and generate a range of potential solutions.

Thursday's meeting runs from 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. Email slsctr@ic@gmail.com for more information.

Mayor Naheed Nenshi plans to introduce a motion at Monday's council meeting to engage Calgarians in an "innovative" way over provincial "tax room." METRO FILE

Nenshi wants Calgarians to enter the 'Tax Room Den'

What is tax room?

City has extra $50M this year because province took less than expected for education from Calgary's property taxes

robson.fletcher@metronews.ca

Mayor Naheed Nenshi wants to take a page from a popular reality-TV playbook to hear from more Calgarians about what to do with $50 million in "tax room" left unclaimed by the province.

"It might be like a bit of a Dragons' Den, where we would have different council members champion the different options and get a sense of what the public thinks of them," Nenshi told Metro. "What I envision is an interactive process both online and in real life where people will really get a chance to see council members debate the different options."

Nenshi plans to introduce a motion at Monday's council meeting to have the city undertake "a short but focused engagement process with the public" over the divisive issue.

Some members of council have called for the money to be simply returned to taxpayers, while others, including

Time frame

If his idea for an "innovative" public engagement is approved, Nenshi said he'd like to see the process begin "quite quickly."

- "I think there's no point in waiting around," he said. "We'd spend maybe four or five weeks thinking through this stuff and help this council make a decision on where to move forward sometime this spring."

the mayor, favour a dedicated fund for transit infrastructure.

As a matter of policy, the city currently uses any available tax room, which has not been forthcoming every year, for capital projects and debt repayment.

Ald. Shane Keating likes the idea of engaging the public but said he'd rather see the debate happen annually, with council having to demonstrate a "dire need" for the funds or else return the cash to taxpayers.

"I will always be opposed to an automatic, multi-year absorption of the tax room," Keating said.

Ald. Gian-Carlo Carra offered a different take.

"My feeling is that tax dollars are our money that we pool to achieve things for all of us, collectively," he said.

$105,000 offer puts SAFE House half way to staying open

Anonymous offer.
Organization helps around 75 women per year leave prostitution

robson.fletcher@metronews.ca

It's not out of the woods yet, but Calgary's only facility offering sex-trade workers a direct exit from life on the streets has new hope thanks to an anonymous offer of $105,000 to help keep its doors open.

The Servants Anonymous Society of Calgary received the "generous offer" in the past week, said executive director Marina Giacomini. The amount covers half of what's needed to run the organization's SAFE House for another year, after provincial funding dried up.

Servants Anonymous still needs to somehow come up with the rest, but Giacomini is feeling much more optimistic than a week ago.

"I think there are still opportunities to work together creatively with government, because it is such a meaningful program and they know that," she said Sunday. "I'm feeling like things might come together."

The province provided $866,000 over four years for SAFE House, but those grants have now ended.

Alberta Justice spokesperson Dan Laville said the funding "was always designed to be 'seed money' to try out community pilot projects related to crime prevention and reduction."

Ald. Gian-Carlo Carra said he's always been a "huge fan"

Funding the work

In addition to the $105,000 offer, Servants Anonymous has received roughly $10,000 in online donations in the past week and a half, according to executive director Marina Giacomini.

- SAFE House has staff on duty around the clock and serves roughly 70 to 75 women per year, many of them with children, she said.

of Servants Anonymous.

"They were born and raised in Inglewood," he said. "Basically, the community had a prostitution problem and it pursued a locally based solution that's gone international because of the success of the model."

Splashy gun-registry events nixed in late 2012

Minister of Public Safety Vic Toews talks about the gun registry during a news conference in Ottawa in February of last year. Public servants spent a month last fall preparing two splashy announcements heralding the destruction of the long-gun registry data only to have the events cancelled at the last moment without explanation. ADRIAN WYLD/THE CANADIAN PRESS

No explanation. At last moment, major national events became 'a note under the door'

Public servants spent a full month, at the "urgent" request of Public Safety Minister Vic Toews, preparing two splashy announcements heralding the destruction of the long-gun registry data — only to have the events cancelled at the last moment without explanation.

The final deletion of millions of registry records last Oct. 31 could be seen as a crowning achievement for a Conservative government that had campaigned against the registry for over a decade. Instead, Toews confirmed the destruction during a closed-door meeting in Regina in a manner that one puzzled gun advocate likens to sliding "a note under the door."

As late as mid-afternoon on Oct. 29, less than 24 hours before the first media event, an email was circulated with fully developed plans for the two events attached. And then, nothing, not even a news release.

Questions about why the communications material was prepared but not delivered were ignored by Toews' office this week. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toews: We can learn from Boston

Lessons can be learned by the explosions at the Boston Marathon, Canada's public safety minister said Sunday.

Canadian security forces are equipped and prepared to respond to these kinds of incidents, Vic Toews told CTV on Sunday.

One important lesson is that all levels of policing and government must work together in the event of a terrorist attack, Toews said.

"We can always learn from this type of horrific experience," Toews said. THE CANADIAN PRESS

War. Vets visit South Korea

JOE LOFARO
Metro in Ottawa

Ret. Cpl. Frank Smyth said he wasn't trying to be a hero when he tried relentlessly to join the army two weeks after his 17th birthday, only to be turned away due to his age.

"Even though I kept paying people with bottles of booze to change my records, I kept getting caught," the Korean war veteran told Metro during an interview Saturday. "Someone said, 'Well, why did you want to go?' It's because that's where all my buddies were going."

Smyth is one of 36 Korean War veterans flying to South Korea — some for the first time since the armistice was signed in 1953 — who were gathered in Vancouver ahead of the trip.

Smyth finally arrived in Korea to support his friends after the armistice as a military policeman patrolling the DMZ at night, hearing the unsettling clanking of enemy tanks beyond the border.

The DMZ will be the first visit for this delegation on Tuesday, and Smyth said it will be an emotional one for him.

"Some of these men will be even more emotional than me because they laid in the dirt and fired weapons and held them off in the battle of Kapyong," said Smyth. "These guys really put it on the line."

Boston suspects planned more attacks: Police

Marathon bombing.
Surviving brother awaits charges as mourners gather to remember the victims

Mourners attend a memorial for victims on Sunday near the site of the Boston Marathon bombings.

KEVORK DJANSEZIAN/GETTY IMAGES

Investigators believe that two brothers suspected in the Boston Marathon bombing were likely planning other attacks based on the cache of weapons uncovered, the city's police commissioner said on Sunday.

As Boston-area residents came together in prayer and reflection, the surviving suspect in the bombing lay hospitalized under guard, apparently in no shape for interrogation.

What 19-year-old Dzhokhar Tsarnaev will say, and when, is unclear. He remained in serious condition two days after being pulled wounded from a boat in a backyard. The capture came at the end of a tense Friday that began with his brother, Tamerlan, dying in a gun battle with police.

There was no immediate word on when Tsarnaev might be charged and what those charges would be. The twin bombings killed three people and wounded more than 180.

Boston Police Commissioner Ed Davis told Face the Nation on CBS that authorities found an arsenal of homemade explosives after Friday's shootout between police and the two suspects.

"We have reason to believe, based upon the evidence that was found at that scene — the explosions, the explosive ordnance that was unexploded and the firepower that they had — that they were going to attack other individuals," Davis said.

Serbia's ruling parties vow to back deal with Kosovo

Protests. Agreement triggers outrage among nationalists; hundreds demand ouster of government

Serbia's ruling parties pledged Sunday to support a landmark agreement to normalize relations with former province Kosovo that could end years of tensions and put both states on a path to European Union membership.

Kosovo, considered by nationalists to be the medieval cradle of the Serbian state and religion, declared independence in 2008. Belgrade has pledged never to recognize the secession.

The EU brokered the tentative deal in Brussels on Friday in talks with the prime ministers of Serbia and Kosovo. The agreement would give Kosovo's ethnic Albanian leadership authority over rebel Kosovo Serbs. In return, the minority Serbs would get wide autonomy within Kosovo.

12-year-old B.C. girl is passionate about politics

Jennifer Johnson. An honorary member of the BC Young Liberals, preteen is a social anomaly and a force for her local candidate Future PM, premier?

"The government is yours.... You have every right to be involved and you should be."

Preteen political junkie Jennifer Johnson of British Columbia

While many 12-year-olds are watching YouTube, texting friends or reading celebrity gossip magazines, British Columbia preteen Jennifer Johnson spends her spare time helping a political campaign.

In an era when the media, politicians and scholars bemoan the lack of youth involvement in political affairs, Johnson's interest is an anomaly.

The fresh-faced brunette races from school to her local Liberal candidate's riding office in Vancouver-Kensington, the thrill of the upcoming May 14 provincial election driving her to knock on doors, cold call and attend political rallies.

She'll be premier or prime minister someday, Johnson predicted matter-of-factly, adding that by the time she turns 25, she'll already have 10 years of campaigning experience under her belt.

An honorary member of the BC Young Liberals — she can't officially join until she's 14 — Johnson has met a number of politicians, such as Christy Clark.

But there's still one top dog she's waiting to shake hands with.

"I would most love to meet Stephen Harper," Johnson said. "I mean, I just look up to him." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rehtaeh Parsons. Mother to discuss new criminal law with the prime minister

The mother and stepfather of Rehtaeh Parsons are meeting with Prime Minister Stephen Harper on Tuesday to discuss how to ensure the distribution of sexually explicit images without consent is treated as a criminal offence.

"The meeting is specifically revolving around one aspect. It's revolving around changes to the criminal code," Leah Parsons, the 17-year-old's mother, said in a telephone interview.

Parsons said she and her partner Jason Barnes received an invitation from the prime minister's office on Sunday and have been hurrying to make arrangements to fly to Ottawa.

The girl attempted to hang herself on April 4 and was taken off life-support three days later.

Her family says she was sexually assaulted at a party and that an explicit photo was distributed.

Police initially said they couldn't prosecute due to insufficient evidence, but recently reopened the case after a new source had come forward.

Nova Scotia Premier Darrell Dexter also said Sunday he will be meeting with the prime minister on Tuesday to discuss the change to the criminal code.

He said Rehtaeh Parsons will be at the top of their agenda.

"These kinds of changes are needed as a result of changes in technology," he said.

"The simple fact is the laws we have are not keeping pace."

Harper reacted strongly to the Parsons case on April 11, when he said as a parent of a teenage daughter that he found the story to be "sickening."

Wastin' away ... Singers audition for U.S. Margaritaville complex

The Boca Chica Conchestra play conch shells to Jimmy Buffett's Margaritaville in Key West, Fla. An Atlantic City complex will feature all things Buffett, including a giant blender to welcome guests. FLORIDA KEYS NEWS BUREAU/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS FILE

Four days and 50 versions of Margaritaville later, talent scouts for the Jimmy Buffett-themed restaurant, music and gambling complex that will open next month have a pretty good idea which acts they'll hire to perform there.

Bands, duos and solo artists travelled from hours away to audition last week for a prized entertainment slot at the $35 million complex scheduled to open Memorial Day weekend at Resorts Casino Hotel in Atlantic City, N.J.

Requirements include the ability to play a wide variety of music, to accommodate audience requests, and, yes, to know at least a few Buffett tunes. Not surprisingly, most of the acts opted for his tropical ode to frozen drinks and that mythical lost shaker of salt.

After eight years at the top of an annual survey of the wealthiest people in Britain, steel magnate Lakshmi Mit-

The Sunday Times, which publishes the list, says Mittal's fortune suffered a 21 per cent fall in the past year to £10 billion ($16 billion) as share values in his ArcelorMittal steel business shrank. The Indian-born tycoon dropped to fourth on this year's list.

Usmanov, who owns interests in Russian mining and Internet companies and a stake in Britain's Arsenal soccer club, is valued at £13.3 billion. He owns several homes in the U.K.

In total, the 1,000 wealthiest people named on the list boast a fortune of £450 billion, the highest on record.

The final steps to closing the deal

Walk-through. A final inspection of the house you are going to buy is well worth the effort

LESLEY SCORGIE
For Metro

Your offer to purchase has been accepted and the bank has approved your mortgage loan.

But before you sign your mortgage documents and your lawyer advances the funds, it's important to have a final walk-through a few days before closing (realtor.ca recommends 48 hours prior).

A final walk-through is not a home inspection nor is it another opportunity to negotiate further with the seller or new-home builder. The primary purpose is to ensure the property is in the condition in which you agreed to purchase it.

When you arrive at the property with your realtor or new-home builder, it's critical you put all excitement aside and examine your home carefully and objectively.

Take your offer to purchase with you and review the list of items you asked to remain. For example, if you negotiated to include the home electronic system and appliances, check that what remains is indeed what you negotiated for and that it hasn't been swapped with something else. On the flip side, if you had negotiated for items to be removed like debris from the yard, ensure that it's gone.

If your home inspector suggested repairs, maintenance or replacement of certain items, and you negotiated with the seller to complete those tasks, check that it's done. Test the following additional items:

- Turn on all lights and fixtures

- Run the appliances
- Run water from all faucets and check for leaks
- Flush toilets
- Open garage doors
- Inspect all doors, windows

Enlist the seller's help

- The seller can be of tremendous help in the final walk-through. If they are open to it, have them walk you through the home and explain how systems like heating, cooling or electronics work. However, it's important that you get some time alone without the seller so you can take time and objectively evaluate the condition of the property.

and floors

- Run the furnace and air conditioning unit
- If it's a new home, check to see that your list of selected finishings (floors, fixtures, and more) has been completed

If in the final walk-through you discover something materially wrong with the property (typically, it must be a few thousand dollars worth of damage), your lawyer and/or realtor will step in to negotiate and resolve the issues.

Though you are probably running around frantically trying to close your deal, don't miss your final walk-through. It's your last opportunity to ensure you are getting what you have paid for.

Once you have moved your things into the house, your first phone call should be to your insurance company.

JACK HOLLINGSWORTH/DIGITAL VISION/THINKSTOCK

To-do list as you move in

When I took possession of my inner-city condo in last June, I was surprised at how much work was involved in changing my address, setting up utilities and arranging for tax payments. So to ensure I didn't miss anything, I created a to-do list on my iPad that I carried with me until I had completed every item.

If you haven't already done so, once you have moved your things into the house, besides phoning the local pizza joint for delivery of your favourite pie, your first phone call should be to your insurance company. The insurance provider will lead you through a series of questions to understand the types of insurance that you will need and how much. Pay close attention to policy details and deductibles (the larger the deductible, the lower the annual premium). You can set up automatic payment for insurance monthly or annually.

Next, call your local utility provider and get your electric-

Phone ahead

- Changing your address can be done prior to the moving trucks arriving. Call your bank, utility companies, family, friends, Canada Revenue Agency, and more. For a fee of less than $100, Canada Post can put a mail forward notification on your old address, which will redirect your mail for a certain period of time.

al, heating and water services connected. Inquire about various payment options and select what suits your budget. For example, heating/cooling bills can sometimes be set to a budget program whereby the amount is the same each month regardless of the season and amount of gas you use. This can be helpful for new homeowners on a strict budget. But paying a variable amount each month may work better for others.

Internet, phone and cable will need to be set up if you use those services. Hunt around for the best deal — often it's cheaper when these services are bundled together.

Property taxes can typically be paid monthly or annually. By calling the appropriate department in your city, you can register for a property tax payment plan that will work best for your cash flow. Property taxes are calculated based on a percentage of the value of the property each year. So pay close attention to the property tax assessment that is mailed to you annually, and if you don't agree with the amount (valuation put on the home), you have the right to challenge it.

To best manage the operating costs associated with your home, establish a budget and stick to it. If you are stumped on how to prepare one, use templates from Mint.com, Google documents or your bank. LESLEY SCORGIE

ARTS FUNDING CUT IS SO CLICHÉ

"You may say I'm a dreamer/But I'm not the only one/I hope someday you'll join us/And the world will be as one." —John Lennon: Imagine (1971)

Artists are dreamers. They envision, they create, they push boundaries, they inspire, they challenge, they defy, they express, they interpret — and most importantly they imagine, and the work they produce allows us to imagine. They're the people who push us to experience life in a visceral way. They help us feel life from deep within.

That's why we need them.

When paired with their more pragmatic siblings (engineers, scientists, accountants, computer whizzes) — or the world's doers — civilization advances at an exponential rate. You have a magnificent sum: the dreamer and the doer colliding. Knowledge economy meets idea economy.

Contrast that with a world of just doers. No imagining. No dreaming. No pushing the boundaries or "thinking outside the box," so to speak.

Krause Encounters

Darren Krause

darren.krause@metronews.ca

It's an efficient world; it's a world full of well-executed, on-budget projects. Some are different, but many are the same. Progress slows.

That might be a smidge of hyperbole, given that there are a number of people with a dreamer-doer mix. But it illustrates what happens when we blithely make cuts to arts programs, like the ones at Mount Royal University or the rumoured cuts to the U of A arts faculty, thinking that its end product is just another starving artist and not another "productive" member of society.

It's cutting half of the aforementioned magnificent sum, or a portion thereof, because it doesn't produce instant and tangible results.

This is the message the provincial government has sent to schools — gear your students and programs to be of economic benefit. Cue the predictable arts cuts. They are the easiest ones to make, right?

Oh, how shortsighted.

Yes, short-term makes the bean counters happy. Yes, it could push more people into the doer scholastic streams — maybe giving a short-term bump in the economy or to productivity. But the question is, how long can it be sustained?

Dreamers conceptualize and design things, while doers construct them and take them to market: everything from structures, music, books, and movies to homes and home interiors, cars, clothes and cellphones.

Artists imagine the impossible and doers make it a reality. It's a partnership, not a mutually exclusive proposition.

One can only hope our government and our schools eventually see it that way.

RE: BPA In Most Canadians' Urine, Effects Unknown, published April 17

In the piece, bisphenol A or BPA is identified as being found in plastic "food and beverage containers."

Within the context of beverage containers used to package bottled water and other non-alcoholic consumer beverages, this statement requires clarification.

BPA is not used in the production of PET plastic-based beverage containers, which have been in use by the Canadian beverage industry for more than 25 years.

According to Health Canada,

BPA is used to "make a hard, clear plastic known as polycarbonate, which is used in many consumer products, including reusable water bottles and baby bottles. It is also found in epoxy resins, which act as a protective lining on the inside of metal-based food and beverage cans."

Health Canada further states that "current research tells us the general public need not be concerned. In general, most Canadians are exposed to very low levels of bisphenol A, therefore, it does not pose a health risk."

Carly Rae Jepsen was a big winner Sunday night, taking home the award for single of the year. LIAM RICHARDS/THE CANADIAN PRESS

I just won a ... Juno, baby

Weekend of Jepsen.

Pop singer takes home hardware for her album and bubblegum hit

The 42nd Juno Awards dialled in on Carly Rae Jepsen, celebrating the cheerful singer/songwriter and her rollercoaster summer smash Call Me Maybe with three trophies that all came at the expense of the teen superstar who helped discover her: Justin Bieber.

Jepsen had the biggest haul of the weekend with marquee wins for single, album and pop album of the year — all categories in which the absent 19-year-old pop pinup/tabloid spectacle from Stratford, Ont., was also nominated — at a briskly paced Prairies party at the Brandt Centre.

The Mission, B.C., native seemed particularly stunned that her gold-selling DayGlo valentine to '80s pop Kiss triumphed in the biggest category of the evening, album of the year, over those multi-platinum efforts from Bieber and Celine Dion.

"I'm sorta speechless," she said, having thanked Bieber himself in a previous speech. "This is amazing. Thank you so much."

Seventy-eight-year-old Montreal troubadour Leonard Cohen also had a good weekend in the Saskatchewan capital, wrestling his second Juno of the year — fifth of his career — for songwriter of the year after releasing his platinum-certified Old Ideas. The award was accepted by his son, singer Adam Cohen.

While Bieber might have been licking his wounds after another so-so night of Juno returns, he could be comforted with his fourth career Juno win, this time for the fan choice award. Surely, if the Junos' voting bloc doesn't consider the recently troubled teen worthy of celebration, his droves of devotees still do — it's the third time they've carried him to that particular honour.

And Marianas Trench, the dramatic Vancouver pop outfit, won group of the year despite missing out on other nominations for

Jepsen the star of Saturday

The Juno Awards celebrated Canadian music stars old and new Saturday night as first-time winner Carly Rae Jepsen and veteran Leonard Cohen both scored major prizes while moody R&B singer the Weeknd led the field at a dinner gala where the bulk of the trophies were handed out.

their platinum concept record Ever After, while 27-year-old frontman Josh Ramsay also shared in the elation at Jepsen's single of the year win given his co-write of her Skittles-sweet smash.

With the gala's youthful bent, Serena Ryder actually seemed a grizzled veteran next to some of her newbie peers. She won adult alternative album of the year — her fourth career Juno — for her gold-certified Harmony and the husky-voiced singer/songwriter with the astonishing vocal range put in a roof-rattling performance of her propulsive recent hit Stompa.

Talking life:

Interview. Metro's special guests talk about fathers and sons, girls and Jada, Bieber and hip hop, and why Jaden won't party

ELISABETH BRAW
elisabeth.braw@metro.lu

"Will's here," says an assistant.

No kidding. His laugh — familiar from 100 episodes of Fresh Prince — booms across the Hollywood soundstage as he arrives to meet me.

Despite being the single biggest star on the planet, with a net worth of $200 million, Smith still comes off as happy-go-lucky — and happy to laugh at his own jokes.

His son, Jaden, follows behind, serious, yet gracious. A box-office draw in his own right, after The Karate Kid, the 14-year-old toplines their new film After Earth, set 1,000 years into the future.

In it, Jaden's character braves a planet overgrown by wild creatures to save his injured father, played by Smith.

In an intimate, hour-long chat, the two discussed working together, Jaden's musical style and the inevitable: life with mom.

That very week, Jada Pinkett Smith posted a Facebook missive, clarifying earlier statements about her and Will's "open relationship," calling it instead a "grown relationship."

Smith talked about that as best he could, given that his young son sat right there.

You guys work together, live together — but online, I see videos of Jaden skateboarding, talking about girls—

Jaden: Um-hmm. Um-hmm.

So I wondered—

Will: Wait. (To Jaden) You be talking about girls a whole lot?

Jaden: In interviews, Dad. About them. I'm not online, like, "Hey, girls, hello!" (Mimes taking a photo of himself) Tweet!

Will, how aware are you of what Jaden's doing?

Will: Not much at all. Not much at all. That's what I like him to think. (Laughs) I have a group of Men in Black that keep up pretty good.

Jaden: This is what I've realized: No matter what I do or how I do it, he knows 100 per cent of what's going on.

Will: (Laughs)

Jaden: There's no point in hiding anything because he knows. Whether he acts on it or not, he knows.

How do you know he knows?

Jaden: I just know that he knows (Both laugh).

Will: I heard Jaden's friend one time, they were sitting around, talking about something and I came in the room and said, "Hi" and walked out of the room and paused for a second and I hear the friend saying, "Dude, I'm telling you, he knows! He knows!" (Both laugh uproariously)

When was the last time you were punished, Jaden?

Will: We don't do punishment. The way that we deal with our kids is, they are responsible for their lives.

Our concept is, as young as possible, give them as much control over their lives as possible and the concept of punishment, our experience has been — it has a little too much of a negative quality. So when they do things — and you know, Jaden, he's done things — you can do anything you want as long as you can explain to me why that was the right thing to do for your life.

Jaden: It works pretty well.

But most teenagers aren't naturally introspective. Jaden, do you find that you ask yourself deep questions about your behaviour and acting accordingly?

Jaden: Yeah. Other teenagers go to parties and sometimes I be like, "Why am I here right now?" And most of the time, I just leave right then and there. Some things I don't like to do, that other teenagers do. Everyone thinks that since you make movies, you go to parties, and I like to party, but not normal teenage parties.

Will and Jaden Smith

ALAN SILFEN

The second coming

"I mean, people are already telling me I look like him, that I talk and walk like him. If I rapped like him too, people would be like, 'Let's go on the Fresh Prince tour.'"

Jaden Smith

Are you missing out on a good ol' fashioned American childhood?

Jaden: Not at all. I go out and skate every night. Hang out with people, skate, hang out with more people, skate to their house.

Will: (To Jaden) What do you see as the purpose and point? So you're not going out and partying — what's the purpose, what's the point, what are you doing?

Jaden: It's not like I don't want to go to parties because I need to study and go to college; I just don't wanna go. If they're gonna play house music, I'm maybe interested, but if it's some random place and they're playing Waka Flocka Flame...

You're anti-generic.

Jaden: Exactly.

Will, how and when did you and Jada decide Jaden could handle a full-fledged movie career?

Will: You can never be certain. You have an idea. You can feel your kids, but until the things in their lives start to unfold and the things they cause begin to have effects, you can never totally see. But we felt that because they were choosing a business that we were both successful in, then at a minimum, we could give good advice.

You used the phrase "they were choosing" but did they choose? Jaden, you were going to the red carpet when you were in diapers.

Jaden: It was not going to the red carpet so people could see us, it was going to the red carpet because we had free tickets.

Will: That's what our life was. The family has a movie so they're going.

Jaden: It started with, our mom is going to the red carpet, she doesn't want to leave us with somebody so she's going to bring us. Then it got to us walking. And then it got to us starring in movies.

Jaden, your music is trippy. It's far from Will's feel-good beats. Is that consciously your own thing?

Jaden: I mean, people are already telling me I look like him, that I talk and walk like him. If I rapped like him too, people would be like, 'Let's go on the Fresh Prince tour.'

Fresh Prince and Fresh Prince Jr. — I would go to that tour.

Jaden: I had to go way left with it because if I came out with a song with me and a bunch of girls in a car with sunglasses on (the Pacific Coast Highway) going, 'Yeah!' they'd go, 'That's the average thing to do.' Instead I came out with the video for The Coolest and people were like, 'Whoa! The camera's going upside down.'

Will, can you even connect to his music, at your age?

Will: At 14, his mind is so much deeper and more complex than my mind was at 14 years old. Lyrically, where he goes and what he creates and how the things are conceptually is beyond what I could create at 14 years old.

Or even later in your career. Miami is not telling a complex story.

Will: Right. Poetically, he's beyond where I ever go to with my music. My strength is ideas. And record structure. I knew how to make records in the way you get to the hook when the crowd wants it.

Jaden: That's what you're really good at. You could go anywhere and be like, "When I say hip, you say hop," and they'll all say it! If I go up there, I'll say, "Alright guys, I'm gonna read you a Shakespearean sonnet real quick, here I go." (Both laugh) The funniest part to me is the music, the old school sound of the music that I have in some of my songs is like what his old school beats used to sound like. It's just different. We're the opposite, but similar in some ways.

The DNA.

Will: That's my seed. Remember where you came from.

Jaden, would you produce Will's album?

Jaden: If you decided, like, "Alright Jaden, I'm serious, I want to make an album" —

Will: Oh, if I was serious?

Jaden: I mean, you have movies to make. Businesses you want to start. You're a busy man.

Will: I see how it is.

Jaden may be too big for you, Will.

Will: I know, I know. He's very serious and very focused and has a very rare combination of talent, desire, willingness and means. Which very, very rarely do those things come together and converge in the proper timing. So I'm excited to see what he decides to do with his life.

Jaden, what happens when you're 18 and Will kicks you out of the house.

Jaden: We'll probably work together till he retires and he probably won't retire.

Will: No we've been talking about, he's been thinking about becoming an emancipated minor.

Jaden: Just thoughts that pop into my head.

They made a movie about that — a girl divorced her parents.

Jaden: Really!

Rent that, get some tips.

Will: No, it's not like that. More the idea that, I want him to have as much command and freedom if he is willing to accept responsibility. Those are two concepts that are inexorably bound. So he's a very responsible young man so he's entitled to the maximum freedom. (To Jaden) I said "inexorably." You heard that? Someone Google that for Jaden.

Justin Bieber, who you're both friends with, has been in the press for some growing pains. Did you learn anything from his last six months?

Will: I talk to Justin once a week and Justin is suffering from immature adulthood in the media and surrounding world. Justin's not doing anything that a normal 19-year-old wouldn't want to do and wouldn't need to do to become a man. The transition from boyhood to manhood is a very difficult transition that he's handling on a world stage better than 95 per cent of the people who talk s— about him.

Bieber's on Twitter. Jaden, you're on Twitter. Will, what's up?

Jaden: He doesn't have one. Usually there'll be people who have a Twitter. He doesn't have one. He likes Facebook.

Will: I got 44 million people on Facebook. I'm just saying. I don't know how many people you got on Twitter.

Jaden: I knew you were going to say that.

Will: I'm just saying, I don't know how many people you got. How many people?

Jaden: Four million.

Will: Four million. Yeah. I got that after my first number.

Jaden: I feel like people on Facebook will just randomly follow just anybody.

Will: (Laughs hysterically)

Jada's on Facebook.

Will: Oh!

Jaden: Oh!

Will + Jaden: Ohhhhhh!

Will: Oh, Mommy be going in!

Jaden: My mom goes in on Facebook! She goes in!

Is she aware other people can read what she writes? (Both laugh loudly)

Jaden: She'll be like—

Will: She'll call a family meeting.

Will + Jaden: (Doing Jada impression) "I'm posting this on Facebook!"

Jaden: (continuing impression) "I don't care what people say. If we get hit for this, this is what the truth of the world is." Uh, OK mom. She'll be on the phone with a manager, "I don't care what they said, I'm posting this on Facebook." I think she should write a book.

Will: Jada is very serious and opinionated and she loves Facebook because it's the only place she's ever had where she's felt like all of her can be received. She's struggled her whole life where only a part of her is OK.

In her posts, she can take a generality and break it down into a truth. She posted recently about you having a "grown relationship."

Will: A "grown relationship." (Looks down.)

Anything to add?

Will: She put some serious, hardcore truth out there. (Pauses) And I think, the five minutes we have left, aren't gonna be enough to cover it.

OK, on to the Earth Day issue then?

Will: Yes! Earth Day! Please!

Thirty years ago, in 1983, people didn't surf the Internet or talk on cellphones. There was no space tourism and supermarkets didn't stock their shelves with genetically engineered food. Now look 30 years into the future. You'll see yourself using performance-enhancing drugs, artificial limbs — and only speak to other humans infrequently.

"Evolution has come to an end," says Rohit Talwar, CEO of forecasting company Fast Future. "Physically, we humans are not developing anymore, so in the future we'll use all sorts of enhancement drugs to improve our abilities — for example, our cognition. Up to 90 per cent of university students already admit to using cognition-aiding substances."

In other words, we'll try to make ourselves smarter — and more successful in school and at work — by taking drugs. And we'll go about our smarter lives in better bodies. Futurists predict widespread use of artificial limbs, which may function even better than our natural ones. "And most of us will have the equivalent of an external hard drive," predicts Talwar. "Like computers, we'll have memory in the cloud. And this is already happening, since cellphones essentially function like our external hard drives."

Indeed, technology will define our lives to a degree unimaginable today. "You think cellphones dominate our lives today?" asks Dutch futurist Erwin Van Lun. "2043 will be incomparable! Cellphones won't even exist anymore. We'll have a world where every window is a cellphone and camera. People will communicate through these windows in a very natural way, asking it about everything from their bank account balance to philosophical questions."

But there's a darker side, too. "We'll essentially be bots," notes Josh Calder, founder of forecasting firm Foresight Alliance. "Artificial intelligence will regulate every aspect of our lives, including our social lives. Artificial systems will help us connect with others because they can tell us who's like us. Of course, that's what's already happening on some dating websites." The chance encounter, the love-at-first-sight romance will be history as human interaction is reduced to a minimum, a luxury even. And as humans become islands connected by AI systems, politics will be reduced to a micro-sphere — your neighbourhood — and the heaviest macro issues, like foreign policy.

Perhaps even more worryingly, AI will put us out of work. "Because AI will be so pervasive, a large part of the workforce won't be needed," predicts Calder. "There's nothing that isn't partially doable by a bot. In order to avoid mass poverty, governments will have to pay all these people a stipend. Of course, if humans want other humans to perform a task, they can choose that option, even if it costs more. And humans will find work assisting AI systems. For example, any human can say, 'I just saw a dog jumping through a hoop'. AI systems can't do that easily."

And, even as they're making us redundant in the workplace, AI systems will be watching over us. "You'll be monitored 24/7 by your phone and be told whether you're having health issues, like a heart attack," elaborates Talwar. "That will drive health-care costs down because preventative care is cheaper."

Of course, a country can choose to minimize the role of AI. But it will do so at its own peril, as other countries steam ahead to AI-assisted economic success. Of course, these scenarios may not happen at all. The world could run out of energy, or there may not be enough money.

But, futurists agree, AI is here to stay and run our lives. Being a servant to computers, using artificial limbs, depending on drugs for your mental output: what's the point of putting children into such a world?

"But by not having kids you're just giving up on the future, because then the future will just be populated by the progeny of the oblivious," reflects Calder. "And while there may be aspects of the future that seem alarming to us, they will seem normal to our children. Humans are very resilient."

Technology. 'In 2043, computers will speak the language of humans'

ERWIN
VAN LUN
Marketing Futurist
CEO/Founder Chatbots.org

Only 20 years ago, the Internet was opened to the public. Being the greatest innovation since the invention of the printing press, it has revolutionized the world. However, the revolution has just begun. In 2043, computers will speak the language of humans. They will no longer look like machines, but like real humans, the most natural interface ever introduced. These virtual humans will live in the cloud, not restricted to any "device." They will express emotions like humans, speak our language, even dialects, and understand our — often local — gestures. These AI characters will appear on floating, transparent camera screens, which will be as cheap as plastic bags today, and spread in all parts of the world, including the now-developing countries. Their incarnation, the humanoid robots, will assist us with many physical tasks. We'll work a lot less, maximum 15 hours per week, allowing us to focus on our core competence: being human.

THE FUTURE

Leisure. Why pay for airfare when you can walk the Grand Canyon at home?

L. CHRISTOPHER KENT
Co-Founder of futures consulting firm Foresight Alliance.

The leisure of 2043 will be immersive. Cheap storage and easy recording mean any experience can be captured and replayed or modified. So gamers will be able to play against “real” professional athletes and, instead of reality TV, viewers can experience living the life of their favourite star — premieres! parties! shopping! — through footage licensed for use by the celebrity. Readers will have the option of reading the story or participating as a character. The same holds true for movies and television. Traveltainment will be popular, especially if climate change premiums on airfare put flying out of reach for many consumers. Tourists can walk the Grand Canyon or visit the Antarctic glaciers in their homes. Leisure time will be extended in most cases by the use of drones, robots, and 3D printing, all of which allow for tremendous time and labour savings, though for the workers in some industries, this could be an unwelcome development.

Work. We'll be happy, thin and work 6 to 10 jobs in our long lifetimes

ROHIT TALWAR
Futurist professional speaker and CEO of the foresight research firm Fast Future Research.

Entire industries will be transformed by advances such as 4D printing that will enable us to print objects that can actually change their properties and behaviour over time. Service industries and professional work will be impacted by artificial intelligence. In this world, careers will be transformed. Increasingly we'll take the option of studying online for free on courses run by major providers such as Harvard, with our coursework marked by AI programs. With life expectancy rising to 100 and beyond in developed economies, the idea of a career will change. We could easily have six to 10 careers over a working life that extends into our 90's. To cope in an intensely competitive world we'll use a variety of human enhancements to make us smarter, fitter and more effective. For example, we'll have bio-engineered body parts and exoskeletons and use smart drugs and electronic stimulus techniques. And advances in genetics have the potential to control conditions such as anger, stress and obesity.

WILL & JADEN

Metro's Special Guests take a look at what the world will be like in 2043, when Jaden is Will's age. The conclusion? An eerie resemblance to one of the latter Smith's earlier blockbuster films.

1 Mechanical arms?

Will: Yes, that's true. You can just have one for fun.

Jaden: I'd be one of those old school guys that's like, “No, all that new technology. I don't need one.”

Will: (In old man voice) “Newfangled technology. All these kids. People lived for thousands of years with no metal arms. Now every Tom, Dick and Harry got a new metal knee.”

2 Drugs that make you smarter?

Jaden: OK, I have a lot to say about this.

Will: Oh jeez.

Jaden: They've been storing information on DNA—they have made DNA—

Will: This is where we go too far.

Jaden: They have stored all of Shakespeare's sonnets on something this big (holds up small tape recorder). Now if they can put information into artificial DNA cells, then I feel they could apply that to our DNA in our brain and we'll be able to download things onto our bodies.

Will: That's deep.

3 Experts also say we become bots. Is this positive?

Will: Yes. All forward movement, even when it doesn't feel good, is positive.

Jaden: That's how I, Robot happened, just so you know.

Will: OK. Maybe he's right. Maybe it's not good.

Rob Stewart is worried about what the Earth will look like in 100 years. HANDOUT

Our survival on Earth 'is in jeopardy,' filmmaker says

Revolution. Toronto's Rob Stewart's latest film has humans in midst of another near extinction

scene@metronews.ca

To hear filmmaker Rob Stewart tell it, global events like today's Earth Day should be viewed more as grim reminders of the tough path ahead than as a celebration.

"We're in a really delicate situation right now where our survival is in jeopardy," says the director. "We've got to do something fast."

The dire straits Stewart describes take centre stage in the Toronto native's latest film, Revolution, which lays groundwork of humanity's survival plan for the next 100 years. "We follow life as a character through 3.5 billion years of evolution," he says. "Five mass extinctions almost wiped life off the face of the planet culminating with humans in the midst of another one of these extinctions." Escapist cinema this is not.

Stewart, a wildlife photographer turned environmental activist, recognizes that fear mongering isn't the way to draw people to your cause — appealing to their humanity is. "We've got to get an emotional reaction out of the public so that they care about it," he says. "We thought that following me around as a character would be a good way to do that."

The film opens with Stewart on press junkets promoting Sharkwater, his debut film about shark finning. During this period he realized that all his efforts to save sharks would be in vain if their entire eco-system were to collapse. From there he details the effects of ocean acidification as a result of over-consumption. By the time the credits roll, Stewart is knee-deep in the fervent activist movement coalescing around efforts to stop the destruction of the environment.

Never a fan of politics, Stewart nevertheless sees activism as the place where average Joes can make a difference. "If this was a spectator sport, we would have won already. But it's not. We're going down the tubes fast."

The list of problems facing our planet — climate change, ocean-acidification — and the factors that created this situation, roll off Stewart's tongue with ease. But he's not all doom and gloom; his optimistic outlook is palpable, making him an ideal spokesperson for the cause. Yet it's the younger generation who he's banking on.

"There's an opportunity for kids to become heroes for the eco-systems that we love. And I think this generation is going to make more heroes than ever before because we're engaging in the biggest battle humanity's ever been in," he says.

"It's going to be wicked to see what happens and it's going to call the best in humanity to the height of their potential."

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

McHale not fazed by gay rumours

Joel McHale has read the speculation about his sexuality — and he's fine with it.

"I see that on Twitter every day. It's flattering," the married father of two tells the Advocate.

Witherspoon and husband arrested after traffic stop

Oscar-winning actress Reese Witherspoon and her husband, talent agent Jim Toth, were arrested in Atlanta, Ga., this weekend after Toth was pulled over under suspicion of driving while intoxicated, police officials confirm to Variety.

Witherspoon was booked on a disorderly conduct charge after verbally sparring with police officers and disregarding their commands, according to the report.

"Mrs. Witherspoon began to hang out the window and say that she did not believe that I was a real police officer," according to the police report.

"I told Mrs. Witherspoon to sit on her butt and be quiet. Mrs. Witherspoon asked, 'Do you know my name?' I answered, 'No, I don't need to know your name.' Mrs. Witherspoon stated, 'You're about to find out who I am. You are going to be on national news.' I advised Mrs. Witherspoon that was fine."

Both Witherspoon and Toth were jailed briefly early Sunday morning before being released.

Neither has released a statement.

Bieber and Gomez playing breakup to makeup

Breakup or no breakup, Justin Bieber and Selena Gomez just can't seem to keep away from each other.

The Spring Breakers star reportedly headed to Norway late last week and arrived just in time to be waiting backstage after Bieber's Oslo concert, according to Us Weekly.

"They have a crazy connection," a source says. "They just can't seem to break their connection. It can be intense."

How intense? Bieber was recently spotted clutching his iPhone — which apparently has a recent photo of Gomez as its screen saver.

The pair have split and got back together several times in recent months.

GLAAD gets mad at Bret Easton Ellis over tweets

Gay rights media watchdog GLAAD threw a big party this weekend with its annual Media Awards, but not everyone was welcome, particularly author Bret Easton Ellis.

"As a gay man in a domestic partnership who plans to get married, I'm sad to hear I've been banned by GLAAD from attending (this year's) event. GLAAD is supposedly 'furious' about my tweets," he posted to Twitter Friday. "After GLAAD banned me, they told the friend who was bringing me to the event to warn me not to go public or tweet about this decision."

Well, that clearly didn't work. Ellis has run afoul of the organization in the past with some of his more attention-grabbing remarks online, including saying watching the TV series Glee is like "stepping into a puddle of HIV."

Family brands you shouldn't wear proudly

IT'S ALL RELATIVE
Kathy Buckworth,

We all know that expression "there's no such thing as bad PR." Actually, there is. (Remember Michael Richards?) And bad public relations around your family can haunt you for years at a school, in a neighbourhood or during get-togethers with relatives. Some family branding and publicity should be avoided at all costs:

- Yelling Family: One of my personal favourites — the screeching mom, the angry teenagers, the loud bursts of a daddy baritone ... love these guys. They make the rest of us feel civil and proud. Yell on, fine people.

- Late Family: No matter what you are expecting them for — school, a wedding, a family gathering, a dinner party, or picking up your kid for hockey — these folks simply cannot arrive anywhere on time. You've tried, oh you've tried ... nothing works. This is their lifestyle.

- Disaster Family: This is the family who always manages to have at least one member fall sick or get injured on a vacation; routinely has something blow up, get wet, or collapse in their house; and has the best excuses for missing school concerts (the bulldozer drove through our basement), parent-teacher interviews (the water line to the fridge exploded in my face), or the last game of the hockey playoffs (the back tire just flew off as we drove down the highway). EXCERPTED FROM KATHY BUCKWORTH'S I AM SO THE BOSS OF YOU: AN 8 STEP GUIDE TO GIVING YOUR FAMILY "THE BUSINESS," PUBLISHED BY MCCLELLAND & STEWART, 2013, AVAILABLE AT BOOKSTORES EVERYWHERE.

How can party planning be more manageable for people with small children?

Have courage; people are going to be so appreciative of anything you do! Go with your strengths. If you don't know how to cook, but make good cocktails, great!

Party Tip

How can you make sure all age groups have fun?

- Think of it as two separate parties. Create the party for the adults first, then take part of that theme and make it appropriate for kids. There is a craft station at all of my parties. When guests ask what they can bring, I'll ask them instead to commit to half an hour at the craft table. Someone's always lifeguarding the table, and everybody can focus on having a good time.

PB & job. BuzzFeed takes the weight off of the cover letter woes by asking applicants to submit their best hunger how-to Writing cover letters is arguably the worst part about job searching. Making yourself sound fun and cool but also professional and hardworking is exceptionally hard.

The folks at viral content behemoth BuzzFeed.com seem to understand that.

A job listing for support specialist at BuzzFeed takes an unorthodox approach at vetting potential candidates.

To apply, BuzzFeed asks applicants:

"Instead of a cover letter, please send us instructions on how to make a peanut butter and jelly sandwich. Text, images, video ... the format for your PB&J tutorial is up to you, as long as following your instructions results in a

Applicants will still have to submit resumés and interview for the position, though Chris Johanesen, BuzzFeed VP of product, had the idea to conduct one of the interviews over GChat, since the support specialist will spend a lot of time helping people via instant messages.

"Many tweets about this job posting seem to suggest that BuzzFeed has decided to request PB&J instructions instead of a cover letter for all of our job postings, so I want to point out that we made this request only for the support specialist position," DuBois said.

Here's how to prepare

Job interviews are stressful at the best of times, but when you are new to Canada and still figuring your way around, those interviews can be downright scary. A lack of confidence about Canadian culture and customs can make the interview process that much more challenging.

"To help with the jitters, practise your interview skills beforehand," advises Haris Blentic, manager of Dixon Hall Employment Services Centre in Toronto.

Dixon Hall is a community agency that offers mock interviews so job seekers can review their speaking skills, body language and approach to one of life's most stressful scenarios.

Check with your local employment office as more and more community agencies are offering mock interviews, says Blentic.

Here's your game plan:

Be on time

Arriving late gets you a low score before you have taken off your coat. Account for travel time. If you can, do a test run in advance. Plan to arrive 10 minutes early.

Prepare ahead

Do some research online (at the library or employment office) so you understand the job you are applying for and how to dress for success. If it's an office job, you'll need to wear the appropriate clothing. If it's a warehouse job and casual clothes such as jeans are acceptable, it's still important to look tidy. If you're short on funds, there are organizations that provide professional attire for men and women. Try dressforsuccess.org and careergear.org.

Mute it

Turn off any electronic device that you carry. "I've seen it happen where a cellphone rings and interrupts an interview," says Blentic. "That's never good form."

Accentuate answers with examples

"The more concrete examples you provide the better you look," says Blentic. Instead of saying you did blood work in a medical lab, say you have experience drawing blood, labelling samples and that you worked for a lab for several years.

Don't be too shy: Some newcomers struggle with their self-confidence and tend to give yes or no answers. Elaborate and provide specific examples. ISTOCK

RECYCLE WITH STYLE AT VALUE VILLAGE

Shopping and donating at Value Village provides a great way for customers to reduce, reuse and recycle.

There are many ways consumers can make small changes in their daily habits in order to have a positive impact on the environment, from switching to energy-efficient light bulbs and eco-friendly cleaning products to carrying reusable shopping bags. What many don't realize is that one of the easiest ways to "go green" is by shopping thrift. When you shop at Value Village stores and donate reusable items to its non-profit partners, you are keeping goods out of landfills and giving pre-loved treasures a brand new life.

"We know that families across Canada are clearing out their clutter and getting organized with spring cleaning," says Tony Shumpert, vice-president of recycling operations for Value Village. "By donating these items, instead of simply throwing them away, you can give back to your community and save quality goods from polluting the Earth. In fact, Value Village operates one of the largest recycling programs in the world, saving more than 600 million pounds of goods from landfills last year alone."

So how does it work? Every Value Village location partners with a charitable organization in its community, including Alberta Association for Community Living, Canadian Diabetes Association and Cerebral Palsy Association in

The highest quality items are priced at a great value and displayed on Value Village's sales floors for purchase, while merchandise not suitable for resale is responsibly recycled.

Residents with clothing or household goods to donate can call participating non-profits for a home pickup or drop off their items at convenient Community Donation Centres located at every Value Village store.

CANADIANS ACT FOR THE PLANET

On April 22, more than six million Canadians will celebrate Earth Day by taking part in some type of event, project or activity. Some will join in a large public event, such as Victoria's Earth Walk, Edmonton's Earth Day Festival in Hawrelak Park, or the Waterways Clean-up in Oakville, Ont. Others will participate in smaller private events organized by schools, employee groups or community centres.

Much of the credit for galvanizing environmental awareness goes to Earth Day Canada (EDC), a national charity founded in 1990. EDC designs, delivers and co-ordinates dozens of programs, projects and activities across Canada. This, in turn, sensitizes Canadians to environmental issues and encourages them to take effective action. EDC's efforts have earned it a string of awards from such groups as the Canadian Network for Environmental Education and Communication, and the Washington-based North American Association for Environmental Education.

"The key to making progress on environmental issues is partnership," says EDC president Jed Goldberg. "We partner regularly with thousands of public- and private-sector organizations across the country. Being part of a larger team inspires people to act."

Act for the Planet, EDC's primary campaign for 2013, focuses on encouraging both groups and individuals to take specific, practical steps to reduce energy consumption and promote sustainability. A calendar lists tips and links; a dedicated Facebook page offers daily challenges and community discussions.

The campaign also provides teachers and students with information and support.

EDC's Eco-Kids program combines partnership with outreach and education. The program provides a wealth of resources — including lesson plans, activity sheets and other handouts — to teachers. Along with materials tailored to elementary school curricula, teachers and students can access stickers, temporary tattoos, bookmarks and posters; they can also create and share online profile pages of EcoKids schools, activities and accomplishments.

EDC also runs a program that encourages children to nurture their environmentalist spirit as they grow up. Each year, the Toyota Earth Day Scholarship Program grants 20 awards of $5,000 each for tuition, books and other expenses associated with full-time post-secondary study in Canada.

First launched in Wisconsin in 1970, Earth Day has helped spawn a generation of people aware of, and engaged in, environmental causes. Many consider it crucial to the birth of the environmental movement and to such milestones as anti-pollution legislation and the establishment of the Environmental Protection Agency in the United States.

TREES PLAY A VITAL ROLE IN ECOSYSTEMS

Tree-planting events have been a popular part of Earth Day since the very beginning. The reason for this is simple — planting trees is one of the most effective ways to improve the environment. It is a progressive, optimistic and practical expression of respect for the planet. In both a literal and figurative sense, planting a tree is about putting down roots and creating a better future.

Trees play a number of vital roles in ecosystems around the world, particularly in cities and other developed areas. They filter pollution from the air, convert carbon dioxide into oxygen, recycle water and rejuvenate soil. Their shade helps reduce summer temperatures, while their branches provide perches and homes for birds and other animals. Humans benefit from their soothing effect, their fruits and nuts, and the shelter they give from wind and rain.

Despite all of these advantages, however, the reality is that trees in Canada are under threat like never before. The forestry industry, along with habitat loss due to population growth and agriculture, continues to diminish the number of trees in this country. Compounding the problem in recent decades has been the steady march of invasive insects. The pine beetle, emerald ash borer, European gypsy moth, brown spruce longhorn beetle and siren wasp have all devastated stands of trees from coast to coast. The impact of invasive species has been particularly dramatic in many urban neighbourhoods, where single species, such as the ash tree, were planted almost exclusively decades ago. Suddenly, the canopy is gone and the neighbourhood feels bare, cold and unwelcoming.

When it comes to choosing which species of tree to plant, consider several key factors, such as soil type, rain patterns and distance from obstacles such as overhead wires, buildings and fences. Some species grow more quickly than others, and some provide better shade. Fruit trees are an increasingly popular choice, particularly in family-friendly neighbourhoods, as they provide a direct link to a food source, and their blossoms delight the senses for a few weeks each year. Your local nursery is a great source of information. And many cities provide free saplings, so get planting.

EARTH DAY ACTIONS

Here are just a few tips from the Act for the Planet 30-Day Challenge Actions Calendar.

GET RID OF DRYER SHEETS — They are full of toxins, expensive and unnecessary — a few sprays from a bottle of water will eliminate static cling. Better yet, use a clothesline when the weather is nice or an indoor drying rack when it's not.

LITTERLESS LUNCHES — Invest in reusable containers, utensils, thermoses and cloth napkins for the whole family. Use your travel mug at the local café.

START A VEGETABLE GARDEN — Whether it's in a few containers on the balcony or in a section of the backyard, grow some of your produce own this summer. Tomatoes, cucumbers, basil and parsley are particularly easy to grow.

HAVE A BLACKOUT NIGHT — Eat a no-cook dinner (salads, nuts, cheeses, crackers) and spend the night telling stories and playing cards, board games and musical instruments. Keep the lights off and use candles.

BUY LOCAL AND ORGANIC PRODUCE — Locally grown fruits and vegetables are usually fresher than those that have travelled thousands of kilometres. Since produce loses its nutritive value over time, they are also better for you.

AWARENESS IS KEY TO SOCIAL CHANGE

Earth Day, created as an awareness-raising event more than 40 years ago, continues to inspire people to adopt new environmentally friendly habits.

When millions of people wake up on April 22 and realize that it's Earth Day, many will ask: "What difference will it make?" Yet, just by pondering the precarious state of the environment, they have answered their own question: They are aware. Millions of us are aware. And that makes all the difference in the world.

As history demonstrates, awareness is the vital first step in bringing about change. For decades, second-hand smoke was quietly tolerated. As more and more people became aware of the dangers of cigarette smoke, however, the clean-air movement was born. Activists formed groups and coalitions, rallied the general public to their cause and inspired governments to ban smoking from public places.

The fight against racism has also been a long struggle and the progress made to date has been inspired by the public's growing awareness of the issues at stake.

We have made great strides since the far-off days of slavery and the not-so-far off days of segregation and blatant discrimination. In 1955, Rosa Parks refused to give up her seat on a bus in Montgomery, Ala., to a white man. Her fight for justice soon became a national story across the U.S., and society took notice. The civil rights movement gained momentum, and attitudes towards racial intolerance began to change.

As the spotlight shines ever more brightly on the harmful practices of corporations, the wasteful ways of citizens and businesses, and the high-consumption habits of Western society, environmental awareness continues to grow. Gradually, the old ways of doing things are less and less acceptable.

We can be proud of the efforts of Earth Day organizers and volunteers to raise awareness of the problems facing the environment. But now that we're aware, what's next? That's where the real test begins. We must apply what we know to our day-to-day lives; we must take the concrete, practical steps that we know can reduce our environmental footprint. Awareness must inspire us to take action.

WACKY WORLD OF GREEN

You may already be part of the green movement — you ride your bike to work, bring reusable bags to the supermarket and grow a vegetable garden. If you are also interested in large-scale efforts to save the environment — or if your interests tend to be quirky and offbeat — the unorthodox ideas below will catch your attention.

Crazy? Perhaps. Great conversation starters? Definitely.

WRAP NORTHERN GLACIERS IN BLANKETS

Dr. Jason Box, a scientist from Ohio, came up with a proposal to lay huge polypropylene blankets over glaciers scattered throughout the north. The blankets would reflect the sun's rays and insulate the ice below. In theory, enough sunlight would be reflected to prevent the ice caps from melting.

MAKE DENSER CLOUDS

NASA and Bill Gates came up with an idea that might not hold water. They proposed ships that would suck up seawater and spray it high into the air, increasing the density of ocean clouds. In theory, the denser clouds would reflect more sunlight and slow the rate of climate change. Using today's technology, however, the huge amounts of energy required to power these ships — along with the exorbitant cost of the project — make it unfeasible.

Devils' playoff hopes dashed in Manhattan

Ryan Callahan scored a goal in the opening minute and another in the third period, and Henrik Lundqvist made 26 saves as the New York Rangers eliminated the New Jersey Devils from the Eastern Conference playoff race with a 4-1 victory on Sunday.

Of the teams behind the eighth-place Rangers, only Winnipeg can now catch them. New York is even in points with seventh-place Ottawa, but the Senators have a game in hand.

"It's not about spoiling. It's just about playing hard and winning," MacDonald said. "We've got a lot of young Mikael Backlund, Mike Cammalleri and Jiri Hudler also scored for the Flames, who are long out of the post-season hunt but have won six of their last eight games.

Zach Parise got his team-high 17th goal for the Wild, who will likely need to win two of their three remaining games to make the playoffs.

This young Flames team, with nothing to lose and a lot to prove, can be just as dangerous an April opponent as one fighting for a spot in the playoffs.

Gibbons confident Blue Jays about to turn corner

This time the rally stuck.

One day after an 11th-inning defensive blunder spoiled a Toronto comeback, the Blue Jays reeled off six straight runs Sunday afternoon to down the New York Yankees 8-4 and avert a series sweep.

Toronto (8-11) heads off to Baltimore for three games and then New York for four, thinking it may finally be heading down the right road after a wobbly start.

"We still have that feeling inside that we're close — to breaking out and getting everything going in the right direction," manager John Gibbons said.

"Baseball, since you do play every day, is an emotional roller-coaster. Maybe today's something that will get us going."

There were a lot of contributors to Sunday's win.

With Toronto trailing 4-2, Brett Lawrie doubled home two runs in a four-run sixth inning. J.P. Arencibia hit his seventh homer one inning later.

Adam Lind tied a club record with four consecutive walks, Melky Cabrera went 3-for-4 and Colby Rasmus went 2-for-3, driving in a run with a timely hit off left-hander Boone Logan. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Curling. Four-time world champion tops Winnipeg's McEwen on final shot of season

Glenn Howard capped the curling season in style Sunday by hitting a clutch double takeout with his final shot to win the Players' Championship at the Mattamy Athletic Centre in Toronto.

He also let the stacked field know that he just might be the skip to beat at the Olympic trials later this year.

Howard, from Coldwater, Ont., scored two in the final end for a 4-3 victory over Winnipeg's Mike McEwen in the final Grand Slam event of the season. Howard won all seven of his games against a field that included top domestic and international competition.

Djokovic masters Nadal in Monte Carlo

For the first time in nine years, the Monte Carlo Masters trophy belongs to someone other than Rafael Nadal.

The Spaniard's record reign at the clay-court tournament finally ended Sunday as he lost 6-2, 7-6 (1) to top-ranked Novak Djokovic in the final.

Nadal won his 46 previous matches and the last eight titles at Monte Carlo — beating Djokovic in last year's final — and his last defeat here was against Guillermo Coria 10 years ago. Nadal missed the 2004 tournament through injury before winning his first Monte Carlo title the following year.

Nadal then beat Roger Federer in the next three finals. His eight straight titles were an ATP record for one tournament.

"I cannot be happier than I am in this moment knowing what I've been through the whole week. Actually two weeks," said Djokovic, who twisted his ankle two weeks ago playing for Serbia against the United States.

"If somebody told me 10 days ago I'd be winning the trophy, I wouldn't think it's so realistic, to be honest."

Djokovic faced Nadal for the 16th time in a championship decider, and they are now 8-8 in finals. The Spaniard had won the previous three, including the French Open final last year.

"I think he played a little bit better than me, especially in the first set," Nadal said. "I felt that I was playing really well the second set and I was having more chances than him." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

48-MONTH INSTALLMENT LOAN ("Loan") offered by Dell Financial Services Canada Limited on approved credit to eligible customers. Minimum transaction amount of $499 is required. No down payment required. Monthly payment amount set out in the ad is based on an Annual Percentage Rate (APR) of 13.99% and an advance equal to the advertised price for a specific product configuration. If you are approved for a Loan, we will determine the APR for your Loan on the basis of our credit criteria and our assessment of your creditworthiness. Our current Loan APRs range from 13.99% to 28.99%. *No interest for 6 Months with minimum transaction amount of $699 ("6 Month No Interest Offer") or no interest for 12 Months with minimum transaction amount of $1299 ("12 Month No Interest Offer"), each with the purchase of a Dell system and subject to certain conditions. Both No Interest Offers only available to customers outside Quebec who enter into a Loan for qualifying purchases from Dell from March 15, 2013 until May 2, 2013, 10 pm EST. NO INTEREST: The no interest period starts on the day Dell ships the products to you (the "Start Date") and ends 6 months after that date for the 6 Month No Interest Offer or 12 months after that date for the 12 Month No Interest Offer ("No Interest Period"). To take advantage of either the 6 Month No Interest Offer or the 12 Month No Interest Offer, you MUST (1) pay the full balance before the end of the No Interest Period; AND (2) pay all monthly payments due before the end of the No Interest Period by their payment due dates. If you do not meet either of these conditions, you will be charged interest at the Annual Percentage Rate (APR) assigned to your Loan, accrued and calculated daily from the Start Date. You may arrange a full payout by calling Dell at the number provided with your Agreement. Example of a Loan with an APR of 13.99%: $999 advanced; $27.29 monthly payment; total payable is $1309.92; total cost of borrowing is $310.92. Example of a Loan with an APR of 28.99%: $999 advanced; $35.39 monthly payment; total payable is $1698.72; total cost of borrowing is $699.72. Please contact Dell for more information. PRICES/ORDERS: offers available only in Canada for specified time period. Savings calculated on regular price offered by Dell. Total value of a bundle equals aggregate of the regular price offered by Dell on individual components; bundle savings represents difference between advertised price of bundle and total value. Prices do not include applicable taxes, shipping, handling, environmental, restocking and other surcharges. Information in this material subject to error, cancellation, change and substitution at Dell's discretion at any time without notice. Dell reserves right to cancel orders arising from any errors and to limit quantities to 5 systems per customer. Offers not combinable with any other offers or discounts (i.e. Limit 1 offer per eligible system). Certain products, configurations, colours and/or patterns may be limited in availability. ERRORS: prices, offers, configurations and any other information in this material is subject to error, cancellation, change and substitution at Dell's discretion at any time without notice. Dell is not responsible for typographical, photography, pricing, posting or other errors. DELL'S RETURN POLICY: If you are the original purchaser who bought new products directly from Dell, you may return the products in as-new condition to Dell up to 30 days after you receive them for a refund of the product purchase price if already paid. If you are the original purchaser who bought reconditioned or refurbished products from Dell, you may return the products to Dell within 14 days after the date of packing slip or invoice for a refund or credit of the product purchase price. In either case, the refund or credit does not include any shipping and handling charges shown on your packing slip or invoice; you are responsible for those. For complete details, visit Dell.ca/servicecontracts. AVAILABILITY: certain products, configurations, colours and/or patterns may be limited in availability. Customer terms and conditions: all purchases are subject to Dell's customer agree mentor Dell's standard terms of sale. Dell's limited hardware warranty terms and the applicable Dell or third party service agreement. Copies available on request or at Dell.ca. GRAPHICS AND SYSTEM MEMORY SDRAM: significant system memory may be allocated to support graphics, depending on system memory size and other factors. HARD DRIVES: gb means 1 billion bytes and tb equals 1 trillion bytes; actual capacity varies with preloaded material and operating environment and will be less. OTHER SERVICE OFFERS: Go to Dell.ca for service agreement and details. Some services provided pursuant to a contract between customer and third party. FREE SHIPPING: Exceptions may apply for remote locations. INTERNET ACCESS: Where internet access is available. Additional access charges may apply in some locations. TRADEMARKS/COPYRIGHT NOTICES: Inspiron and XPS are registered trademarks of Dell Inc. INTEL: Ultrabook, Celeron, Celeron Inside, Core Inside, Intel, Intel Logo, Intel Atom, Intel Atom Inside, Intel Core, Intel Inside, Intel Inside Logo, Intel vPro, Itanium, Itanium Inside, Pentium, Pentium Inside, vPro Inside, Xeon, Xeon Phi, and Xeon Inside are trademarks of Intel Corporation in the U.S. and/or other countries. MICROSOFT: Microsoft, MS and Windows and the Windows logo are either registered trademarks or trademarks of the Microsoft group of companies in the United States and/or other countries.
